The Context

Before PromoRepublic, dōTERRA HQ's marketing team was already using a well-known solution for brand advocacy and content sharing.

But their first-year results showed that only 10% of distributors who signed up were active. Software users were falling through the cracks without technical onboarding and further training.

The posting consistency was held back by a limited content offer with no ability for customization. Distributors saw little value in reposting branded templates without adding their personal touch. As a result, posting activity steadily decreased.

To grow sales, dōTERRA HQ expected distributors to post consistent content and build more loyal relationships on social while staying compliant. dōTERRA ultimately needed to revamp its empowerment strategy with new tools.

Challenges

-  Low Usage of Previous Tool
-  Irregular Content Updates
-  No Content Customization
-  No Posting Consistency
-  Compliance Risks

dōTERRA distributors' empowerment strategy needed new tools to revamp.

dōTERRA looked for a solution that would help lift below tasks off their shoulders.

To provide a user-friendly mobile app to sell on the go.

To teach personal branding and social media marketing.

To involve Wellness Advocates in promotional campaigns.

To track results of Wellness Advocates' social media activity in real time.

dōTERRA Social became a lifesaver in times of pandemic.

When lockdown started, distributors quickly went online, specifically through social media.

dōTERRA Wellness Advocates had to invest more time and effort into online marketing themselves.

dōTERRA Social was launched right before the pandemic started and armed distributors with powerful social selling tools right on time.

Success is provided by a combination of tools paired with informative onboarding and ongoing education.

If dōTERRA had just provided branded content, it wouldn't have worked as effectively at scale.

The compliance engine was added later to ensure Wellness Advocates' claims align with brand standards and FTC guidelines.

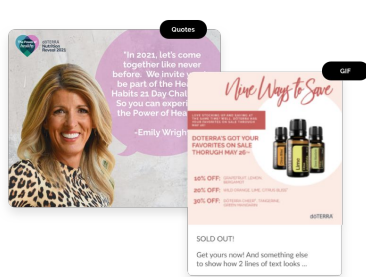

Now dōTERRA HQ rests assured that their brand reputation is being protected.
